Brigade Orders.

THE enrolled Militia of the county of Allegheny shall hereafter be divided into regiments and battalions, to wit.

The 1st Battalion of the 28th Regiment shall remain as heretofore except the Southern boundary, which shall be known by the point where the north branch of Chartiers creek flows from the county line, thence down said creek to its junction with the Ohio river.

The 2d Battalion of the 28th Regiment, shall be bounded on the north by the waters of Chartiers creek as above named, thence by the county line to where the northern waters of Peters' creek pass from the said line, thence down the waters of Peters' creek to the Monongahela river, thence down said river to the mouth of Chartiers creek the place of beginning.

That part of the township of Mifflin being south of Peters creek' as above described, annexed to the township of Elizabeth, shall form one Battalion, and that part of the 62d regiment lying south of the Allegheny river and extending to the Youghiogany river shall form another Battalion—which two battalions shall form one Regiment.

That part of the 87th regiment, commencing at the mouth of Liberty street on the Monongahela river to the beginning of sixth street, thence along sixth street to Grant street, thence along Grant to Washington street, thence along Washington to the Turnpike road, thence along said road to the two mile run, thence down the two mile run to the Allegheny, shall form one battalion.—The district north of the Allegheny river shall form one other battalion—which two battalions shall form one Regiment.

The city of Pittsburgh as heretofore organized (except so much as has been detached therefrom) shall compose one regiment—which shall be divided into two battalions by the middle of Wood street beginning at the Monongahela river, thence along Wood street to its junction with Liberty street.

By order of the Brigadier General,

WM. JOHNSON,
Brigade Inspector.

April 3, 1818.

MAYSVILLE,
(Kentucky.)

THE enterprize and industry of the inhabitants of this town having placed it in a remarkable flourishing situation, and the subscribers being proprietors of land contiguous to it, have thought it advisable to add to its present confined limits.—They have laid off into convenient streets and allies, a sufficient quantity of land, situate in the bottom immediately above the said town, with a handsome situation for its extension. The advantages attending Maysville, more generally known by the name of Limestone, must be obvious to every man acquainted with the western country

It stands immediately on the bank of the Ohio, and is surrounded by a fine, healthy, and fertile country on both sides of the river, and has been the deposit of the Merchandize imported from the Atlantic country for thirty years past.

The main leading road from Philadelphia, Baltimore, and the Eastern Country generally, towards New-Orleans, both by land and water passes this place, and necessarily renders it interesting. The Turnpike Road from the West makes it a point, and if a rich country, and permanent establishments, can give a town importance, this place must flourish. The subscribers offer their Lots on liberal terms, and will secure the purchasers many privileges and advantages, not common to towns. They invite the attention of the Mechanic, the Manufacturer, and Merchant of the West, under a full belief, that the advantages of all parties will be substantially promoted. The raw materials are abundant, capital and industry, with the first gifts of nature, must at this place ensure profit to correct enterprize.

A public sale of Lots will be made on the second Wednesday in April next, on a credit of 9, 18, and 27 months; a payment of five per cent on the value of each Lot will be required at the time of purchase, as a part of the price thereof; and an indisputable title made to the purchasers at the last payment.

In the mean time any persons wishing to purchase may be accommodated, on application to the subscribers.

JOHN I. SCULL. No. 70.

Tuesday, April 7, 1818.

From the London Star.

Lines on hearing that the plant called the Myasotes Arvensis, or, forget me not, was growing on the plain of Waterloo, after the battle.

There is a flow'r, whose op'ning bloom,
Beams softly o'er the Hero's grave;
Whose trembling leaf, and sweet perfume
Denote the dwelling of the brave.

No urn is there, that little flow'r,
Alone remains their woes to tell.
How oft they bled in battle's hour;
How valor fought, and prudence fell!

Sweet child of spring, thy modest head
Was born to grace some happier spot;
And wilt thou bloom among the dead,
And only say "forget me not?

"I would not leave this plain of rest
For brighter skies and milder climes;
Here I repose on Honor's breast,
Unmov'd by fear, unstain'd by crimes.

At midnight oft the Orphan steals
O'er me to pour the sacred tear;
And while his heart a throbbing feels,
He knows his parent's grave is here.

And shall I leave the Hero's tomb,
Or mock the Orphan's tender wo?
No! stranger I was born to bloom
Where streams of widow'd sorrow flow."

Guard of the midnight hour, farewell!
Still o'er the slumb'ring warrior wave;
Be mine the sacred task to tell
The charms that smile on glory's grave!

* * *

The editors of the Baltimore Telegraph, in remarking on the awful event of the late explosion at Wilmington, observe,—"Inspiration has informed us that in the midst of life we are in death, and in the midst of such awful dispensations—we feel in all its mightiness the truth of this passage—but it requires such dreadful evidence to convince our fellow beings of the truth of their own mortality—we forget that we are at the present moment walking upon our graves; that while the sensible and warm body is engaged in committing to the tomb the cold and lifeless corpse, death stands beside the grave and whispers to the surviving mourners, prepare to become likewise the subjects of my empire of dust and ashes; the dying are now summoned to bury the dead. When we see some extraordinary agent in motion beyond the power of human strength or of skill to resist, we tremble and sink into our own insignificance—when we behold the billows of the ocean lashed into fury by the winds, or a stately city red with the beams of conflagration—when we witness the passage of a thunderbolt thro' the firmament, or the silent march of an earthquake over our continent—we tremble with fear and prostrate ourselves in the dust, we sympathise with those who have fallen the victims; it requires all this evidence to convince man that he is mortal.

SEMINOLE WAR.

The following Message was received from the President of the United States:

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States.

I now lay before Congress all the information in the possession of the Executive, respecting the war with the Seminoles, and the measures, which it has been thought proper to adopt, for the safety of our fellow citizens, on the frontier exposed to their ravages. The enclosed documents shew that the hostilities of this tribe were unprovoked, the offspring of a spirit, long cherished and often manifested towards the United States, and that, in the present instance, it was extending itself to other tribes, and daily assuming a more serious aspect. As soon as the nature and object of this combination were perceived, the Major General Commanding the Southern division of the troops of the United States, was ordered to the theatre of action, charged with the management of the war, and vested with the powers necessary to give it effect. The season of the year being unfavourable to active operations, and the recesses of the country affording shelter to these savages, in case of retreat, may prevent a prompt termination of the war; but it may be fairly presumed, that it will not be long before this tribe and its associate receive the punishment which they have provoked and justly merited.

As almost the whole of this tribe inhabits the country within the limits of Florida, Spain was bound, by the treaty of 1795, to restrain them from committing hostilities against the United States. We have seen, with regret, that her government has altogether failed to fulfil this obligation, nor are we aware that it made any effort to that effect. When we consider her utter inability to check, even in the slightest degree, the movements of this tribe, by her very small and incompetent force, in Florida, we are not disposed to ascribe the failure to any other cause. The inability, however, of Spain, to maintain her authority over the territory and Indians, within her limits, and in consequence to fulfil the treaty, ought not to expose the United States to other and greater injuries. Where the authority of Spain ceases to exist, there the U. States have a right to pursue their enemy, on a principle of self-defence. In this instance, the right is more complete and obvious, because we shall perform only what Spain was bound to have performed herself. To the high obligations and priviliges of this great and sacred right of self-defence, will the movement of our troops be strictly confined. Orders have been given to the General in command not to enter Florida, unless it be in pursuit of the enemy, and in that case to respect the Spanish authority wherever it is maintained; and he will be instructed to withdraw his forces from the province, as soon as he shall have reduced that tribe to order, and secured our fellow citizens in that quarter, by satisfactory arrangements, against its unprovoked and savage hostilities in future.

JAMES MONROE.

Washington, March 25, 1818.

CHURCH ROBBERY.

Within a few weeks, an infamous crime has been committed, and with such impunity, that the daring offender considered himself free from detection. On Wednesday evening last, about 3 o'clock, the Watchman met a colored man, in the South Western District of the City, with a bundle on his back, and questioning him as to whom it belonged, quickly discovered that he had been committing a theft—upon threatening detention, the Mulatto, who is a strong, athletic man, made a powerful resistance—but the Watchman conquered and secured him. His bundle, upon examination, proved to contain the velvet and other ornaments of the New Jerusalem Church, in Twelfth street, which he had been rifling—the seats were all cut up, and the valuable property, which he thought fit to remove, placed in an adjoining yard of Plaster of Paris. There can be little doubt but he is the villain who plundered St. Peter's and Christ Churches, for the detection of whom, one hundred dollars reward has been offered.—Phil Adt.

FOREIGN ARTICLES.

A meeting was held on the 1st of Feb. at the Crown and Anchor Inn. London, for the purpose of raising a fund for the relief of the sufferers by the suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act, at which Sir Francis Burdett presided, and several resolutions were passed. Sir Francis subscribed 105*l.* and Lord Cochrane the same sum.

SIR GREGOR M'GREGOR.

Liverpool, Feb. 5.—Sir Gregor M'Gregor, with whose name the public is familiar, from the conspicuous part he has acted in the Spanish American contest, arrived here on Monday, in the William Ewart, from Nassau, New-Providence.

Berlin, Jan. 10.—DUELLING—The legal inquiry instituted against col. Thiell, and the ci-devant captain of cavalry Goschitzki, for fighting a duel, is now terminated, and has been followed by a sentence, which is entirely conformable to the severity of our laws upon duelling. This first sentence has been pronounced only on the officers engaged in this affair. Col. Thiell has been sentenced to nine year's confinement in a fortress, and his second to the same punishment for four years. It is said, his majesty has confirmed the sentence to its full extent. Sentence has not yet been passed upon M. Goschitzki, who having been previously cashiered for other transgressions, is no longer amenable to military law.

JEWISH NUPTIALS. The marriage of Mr. Jacob Valentine, jun. son of the famed Hebrew Bard, with Miss Levy of Rathbone place, was celebrated in Meeks's Great Rooms, in Brewer street, Golden-square, on Tuesday last. Amongst the company were—Sir George Gockburne and his nephew; Lady G. Gordon: and Lady Franklin. When the bridegroom had signed obligation, which compels him to protect the bride during his life, and her father and brother had bound themselves to protect her after his death, the happy couple next repaired to the middle of the room, under a rich canopy, borne by four near relations, where amidst the chaunting of the prayers, the bride and bridegroom were each presented with a glass of wine, and after this, the former broke her glass under her feet.

Were it possible to view through the skin the mechanism of our bodies, the sight would frighten us out of our wits. "Durst we make a single movement," says a lively French writer, "or stir a step from the place we are in, if we saw our blood circulating, the tendons pulling, the lungs blowing, the humours filtrating, and all the incomprehensible assemblage of fibres, tubes, pumps, valves, currents, pivots, which sustain an existence at once so frail and so presumptuous."

The business of the Bible Society, so powerfully supported by the Emperor Alexander, makes great progress in Russia.—It has lately founded auxiliary Societies, 1. In Kiow, where the Greek Metropolitan has placed himself at the head of it.—2. In New Circassia, among the Don Cossacks, which sends a contribution of many thousand roubles.—3. In Tobolski among the bounds of Mahometans and Heathens.—4 In Irkutok, where they send the Bible towards the frontier of the Chinese Empire and may probably transmit it into China itself.

From the Connecticut Courant.

The following extract from the Quarterly Review is calculated to give a striking idea of the vast quantity of business done daily in London, and of the facility with which it is done, by means of the bank paper. The Reviewer, in noticing the work of Colquhoun on wealth, power, &c. remarks:—"The next subject which engages the attention of Mr. Colquhoun in his endeavours to trace the wealth of the nation through all its ramifications, is the business of the banker, through the intervention of whom a certain quantity of circulating medium is made to perform the functions of ten, fifty or a hundred times its value; and the use of the precious metals, and what is of far more importance in the mercantile transactions, time, are greatly economized. Millions of money may be paid and received with a degree of facility and security which specie could never perform. Mr. Colquhoun states, that the money paid and received daily, in the metropolis, amounts, on an average, to five millions sterling, or one thousand five hundred and fifty millions in a year, through the medium of bankers only. To count five millions of guineas, at the rate of a guinea every second, and to work twelve hours a day, would employ one person nearly four months or a 120 persons a whole day, or occupy two clerks in every banking house in London. But all the specie in the world would not suffice in the present state of the commerce of the country, to carry it on without a large circulation of bank notes, aided by the drafts or checks of private bankers. By discounting bills of exchange, which otherwise would not be convertible to mercantile purposes, for weeks or months, they accommodate the trader, & accelerate business. And such is the facility with which the immense circulation of the checks or drafts given by the bankers, and the notes that pass through their hands, is settled among themselves, that by a clerk from each banking house meeting at a particular spot, which they call the "Clearing House," at a fixed hour, millions are paid and received in the course of an hour by an exchange of checks, and the balances are finally settled by a general assemblage of the collecting clerks of the respective bankers."

* * *

Paragraph from an old newspaper, printed above 125 years ago.

CERTAINE foolish young men have lately brought aboute a new Change in Fashione—They have begun to fasten their Shoes and Knee Bands with Buckles, instead of Ribbands, wherewithe their forefathers were well content, and moreover found them more easy and convenient, and surely every reasonable Man will own they were more decente and modeste, than those new fangled, unseemly Clasps or Buckles as they call them, which will gall and vex the bones of these vain Coxcombes beyonde sufferance, and make them repent of their Pride and Folly. We hope all grave and honourable persons will withholde their counteanance from such effeminate and immodeste ornaments. It belongeth to the reverende Clergy to tell these thoughtlesse Youths in a solemne manner, that such things are forbidden in Scripture.

ANTIPATHIES.

Strange stories are told by respectable writers of the violence and strange unaccountable, and indeed incredible effects of antipathy.

A lady has been known to faint whenever she saw a lobster; and it is related of a person, that the sight of a carp would throw him in convulsions.

Erasmus, though a native of Rotterdam had such an aversion to fish of every kind that the smell of them never failed to produce the most disagreeable effects on his stomach.

Joseph Scaliger, could never bring himself, though he strove to conquer the aversion to drink milk.

Monsieur de Lancre, in his Tableau de l'Inconstance de toutes Choses, declares he knew a very brave officer who never dared to look at a mouse unless he had his sw in his hand.

Boyle, the great philosopher, neve could conquer an aversion to the sound water running through a pipe. La Moth could not suffer the sound of musical instruments, but experienced a sensib pleasure whenever he heard the rattlin thunder. The Turkish Spy tells his readers, that he would rather encounter a lion in the deserts of Arabia, provided his hand grasped a sword, than feel a spider crawling on him in the dark. He humorously attributes these secret antipathies to the doctrine of the transmigration of the soul; and supposes himself to have been once a fly before he came into this body and that having been frequently persecuted by spiders in that state, he still retained the dread of his old arch-enemy and which all the circumstances of his presen metamorphosis was not able to efface.

The aversion to a cat is too common no to be known to every one. The Duke o Newcastle, the well known and splendi minister of George I. and through a considerable part of the reign of George I was affected to fainting if he saw a leg mutton transversely carved. That join therefore, for fear of accidents, was neve brought to his sumptuous table but in suc a form of ragout as to become spoon-mea and whenever he dined from home, his servant always went into the kitchen prevent that excellent part of a sheep fro appearing in its simple form upon the ble.

January 16, 1818——1awt

PITTSBURGH,

TUESDAY APRIL 7, 1818.

The General Assembly of Pennsylvania adjourned on Tuesday the 24th ult. after a session of 16 weeks in which they passed 168 Acts and 8 Resolutions.

SOUTH AMERICA.

On the 26th ult. the House being in committee of the whole upon the general appropriation bill, for the year 1818, Mr. CLAY moved to insert a provision to appropriate $18,000 as the outfit and one year's salary of a minister to be deputed from the United States to the Republick of Buenos Ayres, whenever the Executive should think proper to make an appointment for that purpose. Mr. Clay's object, was, in this way, to obtain from Congress a recognition of the independence of that Republick. In support of his motion he commenced an elaborate speech which occupied the remainder of the day, and which he concluded on Wednesday. Mr. FORSYTH opposed the motion in a speech of 2 hours; after which the committee rose and had leave to sit again, Mr. LOWNDES having intimated an intention to express his sentiments upon the subject.

JUNIUS.

The Edinburgh Review proves beyond a doubt, that Sir Philip Francis, a living nobleman of Great Britain, is the author of the celebrated Letters of Junius. The No. (57) of the Review, containing this proof, is certainly among the most interesting in the series, and the very neat and accurate manner in which it is presented to the public, does honour to the enterprising re-printers of it on this side of the Atlantic.

N. Y. paper.

A Paris paper says, that at the children's ball lately given in Paris, by the Duchess of Orleans, the daughter of the American minister entertained the company with an American dance, which she went through with much "gentilesse," though only six years of age. An American dance, if it be not a translation from an English dance, must be an Indian one. Union.

Another of the accomplices of the mail robbers has been apprehended at New Haven. In the lining of one of his shoes was found, very ingeniously concealed, nine hundred dollars in bank bills. He passed through this city last week on his way to Boston. N. Y. Ev. Post.

FISHING SEASON.

HAVRE DE GRACE MD. March 26.

As this joyful season is fast approaching, great preparations are here making building boats, hanging seines, &c.—This season, of all others, is the most grateful to us—this, indeed, may be said to be our harvest, and we hope copious crops may be gathered in!—After so dreary a winter, it is soul enlivening to see such activity displayed by our citizens generally, (for we have but few drones here,) while the benign rays of the gradually approaching luminary of day, and the balmy breath of Spring, accompanied by the twittering of the numerous feathered choir—will, largely contribute to raise the drooping spirits, and render our hearts joyful and gay.

From the Washington Correspondent of the Alexandria Gazette

The suggestion I let fall some days ago respecting Mr. Forsyth's intimation about war with Spain was unfounded, as appears from a paragraph in this morning's National Intelligencer. I am sorry I dropt it; but it is certainly some apology for it, that I was not the only person, by many, who regarded it in the light I did. The authority of the National Intelligencer is too strong to be resisted on a point of that kind, & I have no doubt that it is supported by that of Mr. Forsyth himself. Yet I should think my surmise and it was only as a surmise I gave it, in some measure warranted by what passed—I mean by Mr. Forsyth's words, if I heard them aright, and by Mr. Clay's significant look as a comment on them. The conduct of the executive in the case of Spain is beyond all praise;—and is, in our minds, the best imaginable guaranty for a sequel that will humble the weak, refractory bigot of the embroidered petticoat before this insulted country. Mr. Monroe seems to have caught a firm hold of Washington's sage maxim—"In every contest place your enemy in the wrong." In all probability it was this confidence in the wisdom and spirit of the executive which rendered me more prompt than was necessary to give the construction I did to Mr. Forsyth's expressions.

After all, I do not despair of my surmise turning out to have been substantially reasonable in the end.

Breach of Promise of Marriage.

At an adjourned Court of Common Pleas held in Gettysburg, for Adams county, a case of the above kind was tried—Miss Catharine Everly, plaintiff, and Mr. John Sell, defendant—the plaintiff obtained a verdict for two thousand dollars damages.

New York, March 26.

The United States' ship Hornet, Capt. Reed, got under way yesterday, and went down to the Watering Place. We have before stated that she goes to St. Domingo, and if conjecture be correct, she will proceed to the Spanish Main and South America. The gentlemen who go out in her, we understand, are clothed with extensive diplomatic powers. It is probably the departure of the Hornet is connected with the unpleasant state of our negotiations with the Spanish government. We may know more in a few days; for it is certain that at present our goverment is discussing, in secret, some very important measure relative to Spain.—A letter was received by yesterday's mail from Washington, which stated, that the Committee of Foreign Relations met on Sunday last, to take into consideration the Spanish papers lately submitted to the House by the President.—The Hornet waits for final instructions, hourly expected.

FROM THE NEW YORK GAZETTE, March 27.

We have seen a letter from Providence, of the 24th inst. which remarks, "Captain Heath is here under arrest of the civil authority, as is his second, for challenging Captain Perry. At twelve o'clock this day their counsel is to appear. The fact stated cannot be proved; but all Rhode Island is in arms."

In addition to the above, we copy the following from the Boston Centinel, received this morning.

We learn from Providence, "That Captain Heath late of the marines, arrived there on Saturday last, with a friend and surgeon, from the South: when, it being suspected that their business was to challenge Com. Perry, an express went off to Newport to acquaint the Municipal Authorities thereof. When the second arrived he was arrested, and a challenge to Com. Perry found on him. Information was immediately sent back to Providence, when capt. H. was cited before the Supreme Court, then in session. Further cannot say."

REVOLUTIONARY PATRIOTS.

The act for the relief of the officers and soldiers of the Revolution, was received last week. We are very glad to see relief extended to the indigent of this portion of the community, but we should have been highly gratified if our government while acting on this subject, had fully redeemed the character of the nation from the charge of ingratitude to the authors of their political existence. We will say nothing of the pittance to be allowed to those who will step forward and claim the benefit of the act, but we cannot pass in silence that clause which makes an oath to ones own absolute necessity, an indispensible requisite to a participation of these benefits. How does the generous heart exult at the idea of rewarding, even at this late hour, the toils and sufferings of the worthies of our revolution; and yet how does the heart revolt at the humiliating conditions of the reward—"shame" on that narrow policy which brings the aged hero, who fought the battles of his country, before a civil magistrate to make oath of his poverty—what is it to the nation if the man be rich or poor who bled in her defence? to purchase her independence? the obligation is rendered, and demands a return—but those who are most worthy will not be benefitted—the indigent, from misfortune and misconduct may share alike the bounty of their country—but the high minded patriot whose virtues endear him to society, and who has barely the means of subsistence, will not stoop to the disgraceful conditions of the act, for a pecuniary pittance so inadequate to the services which he has rendered.

Connecticut Journal.

GEN. MINA NOT DEAD!

On the authority of two letters received in this City one from the aid of Gen. Mina dated 14 days since, the other from Gen. Mina himself, dated 20 days since, we are justified in asserting that the account published of that officer's being taken and shot, is without foundation and that his affairs are now in a more prosperous situation than ever they have yet been Balt. Tel.

From the Montreal Sun.

The Attorney General vs. the Juries.

In the late term of the Court of King's bench, upon the trials of various individuals accused of crimes alledged to have been committed in the Indian territories, being moved for on behalf of the prisoners who have been for a long time confined under these accusations, the Attorney General refused to bring them on, assigning as a reason that the prejudices existing in this [illegible] subject of the disputes between the N. West and Hudson's Bay Companies, with which these causes were supposed to be connected, and occasioned by the publications on one side and on the other, were such as to induce him to represent to the Government that justice both to the Crown and to the individuals accused, required that all these trials should be had elsewhere, where impartial Juries could be selected. Hence none of these causes notwithstanding the labours of the late grand juries can be expected to come on here.

RESPECTFULLY informs the inhabitants of this city and its vicinity, that he has opened a Livery Stable, where he intends to carry it on in a manner calculated to do justice to himself and accommodate all others who may please to give him a call, having altered his stable expressly for the purpose, which is inferior to none in the place. He also intends to keep good riding horses to hire—calculated for journeys of any length. Having procured careful managers to superintend the business, he will be enabled to give general satisfaction.

Good saddles and bridles in every case shall be furnished, necessary for the comfort of the rider—when thus caparisoned it is presumed that justice will be done to horses, so justly their due.

Terms of hire and other affairs relative to the establishment, made known at the time of hiring.

He has also laid in an excellent quantity of oats and hay, and feed of every description.

Gentlemen committing horses to his care, may rest assured of unremitting attention in every particular.
